

CNC Granite is not responsible for the changes, staining, or the discoloration of the slab, after it is requested by the customer to be altered. For example, if there are certain parts of the slab that the customer does not like, the leather finish may accentuate the coloring even more. After the alterations are done, the slab can change colors after the process is finished; as well as after the installation. When the slab is honed, it opens the pores of the slab and it may cause small inclusions to be more distinct in color as you may have not noticed before at the warehouse; where your selection was made. It can cause the slab to be susceptible to discoloration, stains, prior to installation and after installation. CNC Granite is not responsible if you are not satisfied with the outcome of your marble/granite/quartzite/soapstone slab. Please keep in mind that we are NOT the company that alters your slab, the supplier themselves use a third party. If you decide to proceed, the payment must be paid IN FULL up front for the alterations of the natural stone slabs. Please be mindful these are beautiful polished rocks by mother nature and are not always perfect.
